Derwent Inktense Blocks

Watersoluble Ink Blocks

Derwent Inktense is unique. Dry it delivers pure vibrant colour but when completely washed out it is transformed into a translucent ink-like paint. The paint, when dry, is permanent and can be worked over.

These new chunky Derwent Inktense Blocks bring a whole new colourful and exciting dimension to drawing and painting. They are extremely versatile and can be used wet or dry, on their own or with other media. They are also perfect for creating fine lines or broad strokes of colour.

They combine beautifully with the Derwent Inktense Pencils and Outliner which are perfect for very fine detail and outlines. The non-soluble outliner pencil is particularly useful as it allows you to draw outlines that are permanent, even when water is applied.

The blocks are ideal for loose, expressive landscapes and colourful still life. They can also be used on fabric to create stunning silk paintings and quilts.

To help artists get as much enjoyment and creativity out of the new Inktense Blocks as possible Derwent has put together an ingenious range of complementary accessories...

Grate 'n' Shake

The Grate 'n' Shake allows you to create paint and mix new colours in three easy steps. Add water into the container, grate the Inktense Block into the water and then shake the container to mix the pigments.

Derwent Grippers

Holding the Inktense block and dipping it into water can get a bit messy! The Derwent Grippers are the perfect way to keep the block secure and your hands clean.

Derwent Inktense Blocks are available in 24 jewel-like colours either individually or in assortments of 12 & 24.

Create paint by dissolving the blocks in water using the Grate 'n' Shake. Take the paint and apply using a paintbrush. Leave more paint in some areas and allow to dry to create this cloud effect.

Use Inktense Blocks on the edge for more detailed work.

Use the block as a pan of paint by lifting the colour off with a wet paintbrush and then apply to your drawing.

Dip the block into water and apply directly to the paper. Use a wet paintbrush in a flicking action to create this effect.

Derwent Inktense Blocks

Watersoluble Ink Blocks

Did you know that you can use Inktense Pencils and Blocks on silk, other fabrics and in a variety of craft projects?

Using Inktense on silk:

There are a variety of ways to transfer the colour:

- Wet the silk and use a dry pencil or edge of a block to draw directly onto the surface.
- Lift the colour from the pencil tip or block with a wet brush and apply directly onto the dry silk surface.
- Use Inktense Blocks and a Grate 'n' Shake to create Inktense paint. This paint can then be applied directly onto the fabric with a paint brush.
- Once dry, Inktense is permanent so there is no requirement for ironing or further fixing.
- The silk can be washed at a low temperature if required.

TIP: Use gutta for your outlines to stop bleed.

Using Inktense on other fabric:

- Draw your outline onto your fabric.
- Create an Inktense paint using Inktense Blocks and a Grate 'n' Shake.
- To help the colour take to the fabric use a textile medium.
- Paint the textile medium into the area required, the area needs to be damp but not too wet.
- Take the Inktense 'paint' and apply this to the fabric using a paintbrush.
- Once dry, Inktense is permanent, so there is no requirement for ironing or further fixing.

Using Inktense for rubber stamping:

- Create an Inktense paint using your blocks and a Grate 'n' Shake.
- Using a paintbrush apply this paint to the surface of your rubber stamp.
- Press the stamp down firmly onto the paper and then remove to reveal the stamped image.
- You can also use your Inktense Pencils to colour in the gaps created by a stamp.

Using Inktense for Decoupage:

- On separate pieces of paper duplicate an image a number of times and layer on top of each other using glue to create a 3D effect.
- The first image should be much bigger than the last image to achieve the required effect.
- Inktense can be used to create your images and will not smudge if used with glue.

Using Inktense with masking fluid:

- Inktense Blocks are perfect for covering large areas quickly.
- Draw your desired design onto your paper.
- Apply the masking fluid inside the outline; a paper stump is a good tool for this task.
- Using your Inktense Blocks and a Grate 'n' Shake, create Inktense paint.
- Once the masking fluid has dried, cover your background with the Inktense paint.
- Leave this to dry and, if happy with your background, peel the masking fluid off to reveal a white outline of your drawing.
- Finish your drawing as required.
